

8 ways libraries empower local communities with digital technology

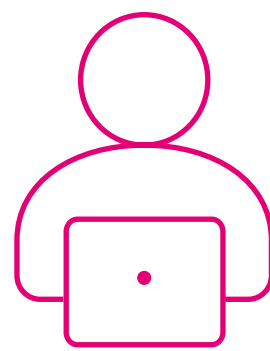

Digital tools, like hotspots, help members of the community thrive by connecting them to what matters most. Whether it's a student who needs access to a virtual classroom, a senior citizen who wants to enhance their digital literacy, or a working professional making a career change, a T-Mobile® 5G hotspot with reliable connectivity can set them up for success.

Here are the benefits to creating a T-Mobile for Education hotspot checkout program for your community today:

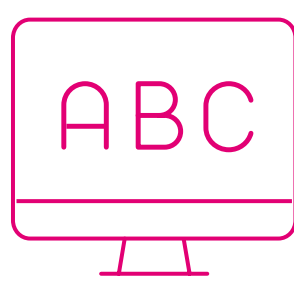

Community engagement

Technology empowers citizens to have a place and space to create a better future for themselves and their families.

Early childhood & education

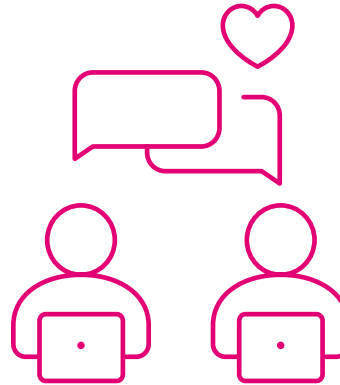

Young children and students can strengthen foundational skills and educational development through digital technologies.

52% of students prefer online learning.¹

Social-emotional learning

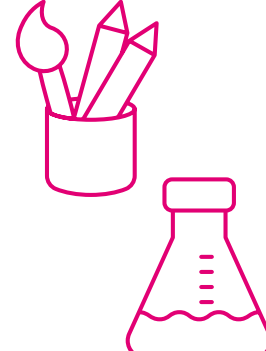

Digital environments help form social and emotional peer interactions and personal identities.

Innovation & creativity

Technology drives creativity and enriches life by inspiring imagination, collaboration, and connection.

85% of working professionals say creative thinking is critical to problem-solving in their careers.²

Parent engagement

Parents with access to digital platforms engage with their kids' teachers more frequently, which supports higher student achievement.

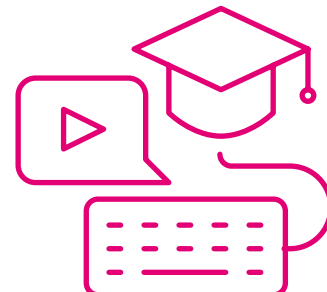

76% of parents use technology to ensure their kids are safe and well-behaved.³

Career readiness

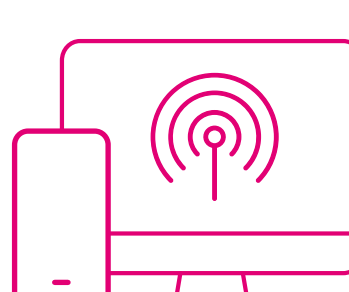

Digital tools provide experiences that encourage exploration and promote self-discovery.

75% of students and educators believe there's a skills gap in preparation to enter the workforce.⁴

Digital literacy

Technology learning tools are key to building a strong foundation for digital literacy.

Telehealth

Technology allows communities greater access to personal healthcare.

86% of households were satisfied with accessing telehealth services remotely.⁵

Want to know how your library can tap into T-Mobile devices, services, and expertise to narrow the digital divide?

Visit T-Mobile.com/Libraries or call 1-877-773-0687 for more information.